Insurance Policies.

If the insurance companies that are investigating the death of Capt. Tom Hunt, the traveling man who died suddenly in St. Paul on September 30, leaving a life insurance of $73,000, expect to beat the claim without a hard fight, they have mistaken the claimants of this vast sum. The story of this disputed claim was exclusively told in Friday's Post-Dispatch. Since then some interesting side-lights have been thrown on the principal characters that figure in it. Capt. Hunt came to St. Louis a little over two years ago from Dakota, where, it is claimed, he made a fallure of running a 2,500-acre farm which he had planted with wheat for two years. He was a typical Southern gentleman, courteous, polite and obliging, fond of good society and careless in his business affairs, visionary in the extreme, of a somewhat romantic turn of mind and not without his own family troubles. He was a grandson of Jedediah Hunt, who bequeathed $50,000 to Oakland College, Mississippi, at his death, and was the owner of a large cotton plantation in that State.

When he came here he was armed with letters of introduction to a number of ultra-

CHILD EVANGELIST.

Cleretta Avery, a Colored Girl, Creates a Sensation in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Sweetly simple looked little Clerette Nora Avery, the phenomenal child evangelist, who spoke for the first time in this city last night. She is the d 10-year-old girl whose preaching tal-cated such a sensation all through the i. Since she was 8. years old she has the marvel of all and the peculiar idol been the marvel of all and the peculiar idol of her own race.

A pretty child she is, even though her skin be soft Egyptian in its hue. Her eyes are large and eloquently mellow in their glow. Her hands are long and thin, and shaped with more than ordinary delicacy. Her voice is low and sweet, and has enough of richness in it to make its balance perfect for the lecture platform. Her lips suggest the African, but not markedly so.

She preaches with the same freedom as she plays. She spparently has not the consciousness that she is doing anything extraordinary. In all but her preaching she is like all the other little girls of her age, shamored of her dolls and curious to visit the toy stores.

is like all the other little girls of her age, enamored of her dolls and curious to visit the toy stores.

She was a child still in all things at Zion Church last night, except in her prayer and her preaching. The church could not hold all who went to hear her. Cleretta came in with her mother and immediately there was a craning of necks and audible comments. She looked at the audience as if she took pleasure from the smilling faces that greeted her. Her legs were too short to admit of her feet reaching the floor, but she kept trying to reach it with her toes, toying with her handkerchief and generally wearing the nonchalant air that is never pleasing except when taken on by a child.

ecial to The Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Nov. 23 .- Keir Hardie, the Socialist ex-member of Parliament, . de-

Socialist ex-member of Parliament, delivered a farewell address fast night. He said that during his trip to the West he found a good deal of dissatisfaction. He asked the farmers and cowboys what they were going to do about it and they pointed at their Winchesters, and replied:

"Bullets, if ballots fail."

Mr. Hardie dwelt with particular emphasis on the statement that Americans enjoyed less personal liberty than Englishmen. He gave a rap to the "toadies," as he called the men who honored the Duke of Marlborough, and said the spirit of Socialism was growing all over the country. He declared that the present war talk in Europe was a mere ruse to divert attention from Bocialism's strides and an effort to get Socialists to shoot each other.

lieved, however, to find that such is not the case.

Officer Thomas Woodling, of the Central district, rode down town on the case about 8 a.m. It was very crowded, but he managed to wedge himself into the aisle, where he stood in the midst of several women who were packed together like sardines in a box. The policeman alighted at Fourteenth and Market streets. He had only proceeded a few steps when he noticed a ladies' gold watch hanging from a chain which was caught on one of the buttons of his rubber coat.

The owner of the watch must have worn it pinned on the outside of her dress, and when Woodling was crowded against her it caught on the button. The watch bears the monogram "C. N. S." on one case and the initials "W. F." on the other. The chain has a basket of flowers for a charm and a 10-cent piece for a bangle. The property is at the Central Station awaiting an owner.

A Post-Dispatch reporter called this morning and was met by Van Sice's wife and mother. They both appeared perturbed and the mother said her son could not be seen. Mrs. Van Sice said that when her hasband came home last night he had a wound on his head and was bleeding profusely.

He told her, she claimed, that he had been in a tailor shop in the vicinity of Seventh and Walnut streets, and that while walking up Seventh street four men jumped out of an alley and struck him a vicious blow on the head with a knife, knocked him down and robbed him of an opal pin that he wore in his cravat. Her husband carried a sword cane that his wife had presented him with, and wish it he beat his assailants off. Mrs. Van Sice thinks he was lucky to escape with his life.

She says they have been married only four months, and that she is a sister of Mrs. L. M. Rumsey. She could not locate the tailor shop.

Up to this time neither the driver nor the manager knew the identity of the riders. Nor was it revealed until some few hours afterward. After Tommie and his friend left the Lindell they Mad a great time. Several questionable resorts were visited, and by the time they reached Etta Mason's, on Clark avenue, they were beautifully lagged. The superabundance of liquid refreshments dish't improve. Tommie's usually complaces the manes of cost manner. He grew quarrelsome, and finally "mixed" in a rough and tumble with his friend. As the started to walk from the Four Courts, the manager of the cab stood before him. He demanded Bif for the rides and the dam's age done to his coupt. The ball players kicked hard against giving up the "welver" but after a stormy argument he concluded it would be best to pay and try to keep the matter quiet.

The arresting officer, whose name was a Miller, testified that he arrested him at Meramec and Oregon avenues. He had gone into a yard and picked up a bottle and an old broken spittoon. The defendant admitted to the officer that he gathered rags, bottles and bones. He was out of work and to provide for a wife and five children he had resorted to this precarious mode of making a living. The vigilant policeman wanted the resident of the house whose premises had been invaded to prosecute the rag picker for treepass. The citizen declined, but the majesty of the law had been offended, and so a charge of rag picking without a permit was preferred.

Judge Peabody asked if any policeman present knew the prisoner. When Officer Herndon volunteered to testify odds were offered that the prisoner would be queered. The officer remembered that two or three years ago Miller had been convicted of petit larceny. The evidence was that Milles worked whenever he could get it; that rather than loaf he would take the most menial employment, and that he had made a successful effort to reform.

It looked like he would be fined. But the mars and wife and baby were rosy and plump and showed evidence of good treatment. This turned the scale, and although the prisoner was fined $10, the fine was stayed.

He also claims to have repeatedly asked his brother for an administration of their father's estate, but never could obtain any satisfaction.

Howard Brolaski when seen said: "I have just been served with a notice of the citation. This action of my brother is simply ridiculous and can be intended only to annoy me. My father died in Silvestor, Colo, and when his estate was settled up what little was left was given to my mother. That was dissipated long before her death, My brother knows all this as well as I do. He never was my partner in the shoe or any other business. Of course I will obey the summons of the court."

The citation is for November 30, when a hearing will be had before Judge Rassieur.

BREAKERS AHEAD.

Tax Gatherers Anticipate Trouble From the Brother in Black.

The levying of executions on back tax judgments is still being prosecuted by Sheriff Henry Troll's deputies. Friday and Saturday the work was confined principally Saturday the work was confined principally to the business districts, and was devoid of incident. Next week is the last in which levies can be made, and it will be a busy one for the tax collectors, as at least 200 judgments remain unsatisfied.

It is probable that additional deputies will be put at this work next Monday, although the number of delinquents who are voluntarily appearing at the office to settle up, on account of the publications in the Post-Dispatch, is daily increasing. It is not probable that many will have escaped when the books are closed on the first Monday in December.

Next week the deputies will invade the colored settlement clustered about Maffitt and Newstead avenues. They apprehend more excitement there than they have yet experienced. They state that the residents there regard a deputy sheriff as a hostile to be attacked and vanguished whatever his mission. They say they have had experiences out there in serving writs and executions, in which they were attacked with bludgeous and narrowly escaped with their lives.

willed that Mrs. Getz must-go.

The congratulatory letter sent to F. D. Hirschberg & Bro. by the W. C. T. U. is not the only communication of that nature received at the office. Since Thursday their mail has been flooded with letters from business men commending their action and conveying assurances of support in a business way. In fact, Frank Hirschberg finds himself, unexpectedly, a sort of hero and his skin is gradually assuming a permanently pink hue from continuous blushes at the compliments showered upon him.

When seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday afternoon in regard to the likelihood of a new organization and a lower insurance rate, he said:

"I do not think there will be a separate organization, and my severance can scarcely affect the board. It will go along as formerly and I will go it alone. While I will incur considerable additional expense I hope to pull through all right. As to a cut in rates I know nothing at present and will not resort to that except as a necessary measure."

"Has, your business, noticeably increased." will not resort to that except as a necessary measure."

"Has your business noticeably increased since your expulsion?"

The local realty agents, at least the majority of them, favor the stand taken by Mr. Hirschberg. A prominent dealer says that it means a reduction, in rates, and it is estimated in a general way that the outcast firm will do about a half million dollars worth of additional business.

Leslie Moffet, Sr., of the firm of Moffet & Franciscus, says that Mr. Hirschberg will get about $50,000 worth of business from his firm on January 1.

"The stand taken by Mr. Hirschberg," said Mr. Moffet, "will be appreciated by every business man in the city. It means that the big insurance combine has been broken and that the rate of $1.50 per $1,000 will be discounted. This rate is unreasonable as it stands."

Then Mr. Moffet said that the rate of $1.50 per $1,000 will be discounted. This rate is unreasonable as it stands."

The Board of Underwriters has not given the slightest evidence of repentance. On the contrary it seems to realize that it has a fight on its hands and, feeling that public sentiment in St. Louis is against it, has transferred the fight against the Hirschbergs and Mrs. Getz to Chicago. Most of the insurance companies doing business in St. Louis have central agencies in Chicago, and it is claimed that the board is engaged in attacking Hirschberg & Bro. from the febr.

LEFT ALONE BY HER BROTHER Or Oxalate of Lime

He Says She Knows No One In St. Louis and Could Not Have Eloped.

One of those strange disappearances, which, until the explanation comes, defler solution and invites theorizing, took place Friday evening at the Union Station, interest in the occurrence is enhanced by reason of the fact that the missing individ-ual is a young woman of sound mind and ual is a young woman of sound mind and fair face.

Her name is Mattie Williams. She is 20 years old and hails from Louisville, Ky. She was left by her brother. Theorode, in the station about 5 o'clock and told to remain there until he returned. He wanted to go down town for something. When he came back, shortly after 7 o'clock, she was missing, and he is yet without the slightest trace as to her whereabouts.

Williams reported the matter to Officers Maioney and Dixon, who are detailed at the depot, and reports have been sent to all the districts to keep a sharp lookout for the young woman.

According to what little information the police and station authorities secured from Williams, he and his sister Mattle came up from Louisville last Wednesday on an excursion. One night they stopped at the Terminal Hotel, but after that left and went down town to some other hostelry. Williams thought it was the Laclede, but he was not sure. He could not remember the name. Investigation later, however, showed that no such couple had registered at that place.

Friday afternoon they determined to the second to the place.

Friday afternoon they determined to return home. They expected to take the 7:35 p. m. train on the Louisville & Nashville. Having nothing else to do they thought they would go to the station and wait there until train time. They arrived about 5 o'clock, or shortly after this hour, and then the brother decided to go back down town. He told his sister to await his return. This she promised to do without questioning.

When Theodore got back to the station his sister was gone. He looked everywhere for her, but not a sign of her could he find. He let his train pull out and started in to locate the missing girl. Officers Maloney and Dixon were informed of the occurence and Capt. Henry of the station police was called on. Matron Frazier had seen nothing of her, and so the search developed nothing.

williams sat around the waiting room all night in the hope that his sister would return, but she did not. By 7 o'clock Saturday morning he was very gravely alarmed, and, after telling his story to Officers McFarlane and Little, who came on watch at 7 o'clock, he went away, saying that he would go down town and look for her.

he went away, saying that he would go down town and look for her.

According to Williams' statement the missing girl did not know a soul in St. Louis. Mrs. Frazier asked him if she had met any men on the train coming over from Louis-ville with whom she might have eloped, but he said that she had not. They two had sat in the same seat all the way over.

It is possible that she may have come over here with her brother for the purpose of meeting some man and eloping with him, or she may have met some one in St. Louis with whom she had become infatuated. But it his, of course, is mere surmise. So far as the facts are concerned no man as yet has been injected into the case, taking it for granted, of course, that Williams statement that he is the girl's brother is true. It seems highly improbable that a girl from a city the size of Louisville should wander away and get lost in St. Louis so thoroughly that she could not find her way back to so well-known a place as the Union Station. There must have been a motive in her leaving or else she suddenly became demented. If she had been toted off by some strange man the chances are that she would have returned by this time unless something had happened to her.

Of course it is possible that she took the train to Louisville. No one thought to ask Williams if the girl had her own ticket back home. If she had she might have gotten on the L. & N. train as soon as the gates were opened in fear of losing her brother in the crowd and expecting him to follow, and thus been carried away without him. Such a suggestion however does not seem to have occured to Williams, so that in all probability he has both tickets.

The description given of the girl is quite in detail, and her appearance must be such as to make her identification easy. She is described as having worn a black sailor hat black cape with white fur collar and relations. as to make her identification easy. She is described as having worn a black salior hat black cape with a white fur collar and gole rimmed eye-glasses and as being of medium height, heavy set and of the blonde type. Williams says his Louisville address is 3838 North Brook street.

Other cities have had their mammoth bazaars, why not St. Louis? It will be held at the Beil Telephone Building, Tenth and Olive streets, and the promoters are preparing to make it an overwhelming success. It will be for the benefit of the South Side Day Nursery.

The big hall in the top of the building will be given over to the ladies of the association. If will be filled with dolls and their accessories. There will be eight or nine tables cowered with dells, doll furniture, doll bedding, doll millinery and homemade doll candy.

Bir Henry Irving has written that he is having a doll dressed for the occasion. Col. Ingersoll inclosed flot to fit out a doll. Others replied in a similarly encouraging veln.

Leading society ladles of St. Louis are also taking an interest in the enterprise. Some of them have dressed as many as 100 dolls with their own hands. A feature of the affair will be the millinery displayed. It will consist chiefly of Paris pattern fats, collected from milliners to whom they were sent as samples by Paris dealers.

Mrs. George F. Durant, Mrs. B. C. Rowse and Mrs. G. A. Finkelnburg have the direct management of the enterprise. They are being assisted by ladles of the South Side Day Nursery Association, of which Mrs. C. M. Woodward is President; Mrs. Fickinger, Secretary, and Mrs. J. M. Miller, Treasurer. The crime of which Shepard was convicted was the murder of Thomas Gliroy, alias Morton, on Dec. 24, 1894. When the verdict was read the condemned man was the coolest person in the court-room. He sat silently in the prisoner's chair until Deputy Sheriff Billy Troil took him back to the cage and locked him up. Sheriff Billy Troll took him back to the cage and locked him up.

The trial of Shepard was finished Friday at 12:30 o'clock, and at 2 o'clock arguments in the case were begun. Assistant Circuit Attorney Bishop apoke for thirty minutes, and was followed by Shepard's attorney, H. E. Schaumleffel. He compared the killing of Morton to the slaying of an Egyptian by Moses for oppressing a Hebrew.

The case was submitted to the jury at 2:25 o'clock, and just fifty minutes later a verdict was reached. During the time the jury was out Shepard talked with his wife. She is a pale little woman—one of those wives who, although neglected by their husbands, appear when sorrow or even death threatens and stay with them until the end.

Shepard has dropped his former attorney, H. E. Schaumleffel, and retained Attorneys James Staubus and Percival Adams. A motion for a new trial will be filed.

MAIL CLERKS' PENSION FUND.

A New Feature to Be Added to the Insurance Association.

The railway mail clerks who make their headquarters in St. Louis are discussing the advisability of adding a pension feature to their insurance society, the Mutual Benefit Association.

Arthur McIntire, one of the clerks in the St. Louis office, visited Mr. Hammerstein, Auditor of the School Board, a few days ago to get detailed information about the teachers' pension system authorized by the last session of the Legislature. A like plan may be adopted by the mall clerks.

Repeated efforts have been made by the mail clerks to get through Congress a pension bill for the benefit of men maimed in the service or enfeebled by many years of active work. Every attempt has failed on account of the prejudice against a civil pension list.

The St. Louis clerks decided to establish a private pension fund, independent of the Government as the insurance society. Railway mail clerks who are injured in wrecks, and they are legion, receive pay for six months from the Government, and then if they are unfitted to return to work they are dropped from the roils.

The mail clerks' insurance society pays 31,000 death benefits and half of the 7,000 clerks in the country belong to it. As yet the pension scheme is wholly undeveloped.

THE THIRD TERM FOLLY.

"Why should President Cleveland be opposed to a third term any more than a bank President should?" asks Secretary Morton, with the saucy folly which sits so ludicrously on the shoulders of the President's jester.

Proceeding on this line, Mr. Morton likens the government to a bank which is charged with the care of the interests of all the people. The conduct of a government, he says, is merely a matter of business, just as the conduct of a bank is, and if the President of a bank est possible moment. is elected many times why should it not be so with the President of the United State Committee will make the work of on with those who know anything at all about the science of politics, the Post-Dispatch shrinks from going ance as Secretary Morton presents in this ent. But he should not be judged too harshly. A man who has been the will be a special Thanksgiving Number political agent of corporations as long as he has, and has seen the government dabbling in business as much as the tiful Holiday edition of a newspaper as he has, and has seen the government United States Government has for some years past, may be excused for looking on it as a business corporation to be run by the President most acceptable to its ancial directors.

But for the benefit of Democrats who can grasp political ideas it is worth while saying that the no-third-term policy is as much an organic law of the American people as if it we incorporated in the Constitution. Washington set the example and Jefferson pointed the danger of a prolongation of the ser-vice of one man as Chief Executive and formulated the law with regard to its termination. His opinion was indorsed by public meetings, legislative bodies and political conventions. It was finally given the force of statute law by the following resolution of the House of Representatives, passed Dec. 15, 1875, under suspension of the rules by a vote of 234

Resolved, That in the opinion of this House, the precedent established by Washington, and other Presidents of the United States, in retiring from the Preside office after their second term, has been by universal concurrence, a part of our republican system of government, and that any departure from this time-honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions. It matters little whether Mr. Cleveland opposes a third term or not. The people will settle that question for him or one else who chooses to put it to the test.

It is not pleasant for Senator Sherman o read from the pen of his distinguished rother that he despised all politicians,

It is not pleasant for Americans to learn that a man who was highly honored by them for eminent military services, who was regarded as an exemplar of patriotism and was frequently mentioned as a fit candidate for the Presidency, assured another that he did not blame him for buying votes and that he held him in the highest respect. #### NOW FOR "HARMONY."

Now that harmony is in a fair way of Now that harmony is in a fair way of being secured on a proper basis—namely, on the basis of Missouri Democrats ruling themselves instead of being ruled by petty bosses—the Post-Dispatch is warmly in favor of harmony and will do its best to promote it. This is the only kind of "harmony" that is compatible with Democratic principles. There could be no genuine "harmony" as long as the minority refused to accept the expressed will of the majority, and the demand for it that has recently been so vociferous on the part of the obstructive minority

The new members of the State Committee have been admitted to their rights without conditions. They are fettered by behalf, and they should resist any efforts to commit them in advance to any course of action on any question that is likely to come before the committee. They owe it to their own dignity and to the trust reposed in them by their constituents to maintain their independence of judgment and freedom of action.

There is no need of even considering the precise date of the State Convention for the election of delegates to the National Convention until after the Democratic National Committee meets on Feb. 22. When the time comes to consider the question of calling the State Convention, each and every member of the State Committee should be in a posi tion to vote in accordance with his view of the necessities of the situation as then existing. ust not be held later than April 15, It is this provision of the Pertile Convention which it is said the gold springs Convention which it is said the gold men want to do away with. They want the delegating convention in this State delayed until after the goldbug States of the East have held their conventions and put themselves on record for "sound money" and an inforsement of the Cleveland-Carlisle policy of finance in hopes that this will somewhat dampen the ardor of the silver Democrats in Missouri and cause them to fall in line with the Democrats of the East, or agree upan a sort of compromise policy and send a mixed goldbug and silver delegation to the National Convention.

It will never do for the Democratic party

It will never do for the Democratic party in this State to allow the small minority of goldbug Democrats who are trying to break the force of the free silver sentiment to have their way. It is safe to say nine Missouri Democrats out of every ter are in favor of the free and unlimited co age of both gold and silver at the present ratio of 16 to 1. To permit the delegated rote of this State to be recorded at the National Convention in favor of any other colley than this would be a disgrace to the party and base betrayal of its wishes. If such should be done no power under the sun could save this State to the Democrat

The Law and the Majority.

From the St. Francois (Mo.) Herald. From the St. Francois (Mo.) Heraid.

The Democrats of Missourl don't propose to be ruled and run over rough shod by the St. Louis Republic and its gang of goldbug bankers. The last Democratic convention of this State, which pledged the party squarely to the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 18 to 1, also adopted a resolution demanding that the State Convention next year to elect delegates to the national convention should be gates to the national convention should be held not later than April 15. Now the Republic and the cuckoos for some sinister purpose want this action of the party cor vention ignored and the date fixed to suit the followers of John Sherman. They pre-tend to want harmony and put up the silly plea that the convention should be deferred as long as possible so that a "full dis-cussion" of the issue may be had. Any one with common sense can see the absurdity of this. In the first place, these coldbugs take the ground that the Deme crats of Missouri are fools: that they know nothing of the financial question and are not capable of attending to their own affairs, but need the Republic and a few of Cleve land's officeholders to act as their guard The Missouri Democrats, ho are not fools enough to be caught by the cunning and schemes of a few Wall Street conspirators.

Overworked Statesmen

From the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette. When Messrs. These statesme ould not forget that overwork in affairs requiring intense application and proonged concentration of the mind upon a single theme kill a great many people, Unless they shall finally conclude to allow the Democrats of Missouri to attend to the party management, without so much sought help, they may rue it.

Carlisle's Death Knell. From the Louisville (Ky.) Times. The Mugwump battle for Bradley was fought under the false pretense of vinicating the Cleveland administration and opening a great political future for Secre-tary Carlisle; but somehow that meaning is nowhere and by nobody attached to the victory won by the allied armies of greed, hypocrisy and intolerance. On the con-trary, the political landslide of last week is being interpreted everywhere and by everybody as a slip-up and slide-over for the Cleveland administration and the deathknell of Mr. Carlisle's political prospects and aspirations.

We believe that one matal performs the functions of money as well as the other, provided they occupy the same position under the law. We believe the law fixes the value of both metals. We believe the free coinage of both metals will increase the volume of money. We believe the more money we have in circulation the better times we will have, the better prices for labor and the products of labor, and the less liability of the plutocrats "cornering" the issue of more bonds. We believe the "expensive carrying on of the mints" would cost much less than an eternity of interest on the bonds. And finally we believe the great mass of the common people will thereby share in the profit of free coinage. Now read up on the son-interest bearing bond scheme and you will find some more food for thought.

Is it not a fact that the money kings of the world control every government of importance? They are men more powerful than any government. Is it not a fact that the manipulation of money, bonds and stocks during the last twenty-five years has proven so profitable that investment has been drawn away from land, the tendency now being to sub-divide rather than monopolize? Were the single tax to give every man land, that would got keep the money kings, masters of the most skillful device known, from robbing him. The financial manipulators have oppressed all land owners; have ruined many.

Direct vs. Indirect Taxation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

What is needed above all else to relieve the poor from unjust and oppressive taxes is a system of absolutely direct taxation. Some say that the people will not submit to direct taxation. We have never yet tried it, but I think they will. They now submit to what they suppose is a system of direct taxation in the different States, although it is mostly just as indirect as that maintained by the nation.

But whether they will submit to it or no, or whether they like it or no, they must be told that what they need is a system of absolutely direct taxation; a system which will tax them in proportion to their property, and not in proportion to what they are compelled to spend in order to keep their families barely living. When people one understand the question, the only real question in their minds will be: What system of direct taxation is there and how can it be unforced?

If It Called for Chickens It Had to Have 'Em.

NONE OF QUINLAN'S AFFAIR.

That Complaisant Contractor Was Ready to Charge a Suit of Clothes as Beef.

Jailer Wagner will probably lose his place. This is the opinion of those who know Acting Mayor Nagel, and who are conversant with the particulars of the chicken scandal at the jail.

The acting Mayor refuses to say what will be done, but it is evident that he means business.

"To say now what I intend doing," he id, "would be like a judge delivering an pinion in advance. I am only waiting for written opinion of the City Counselor. Then it is given if I find that Wagner has sen wrong in doing what he has I will tin a way that will leave no doubt in the public mind as to how I feel about it."

It looks now as if Wagner is destined to experience a good deal of trouble in explaining how it was that chickens were supplied him by the city contractors while no such articles of food were entered on the bills. The law does not contemplate that such articles of food shall be supplied to the prisoners, and when the contracts were let no such items were included in the list. But "Butch" Wagner was a little exclusive in his tastes. Beef was all very well in its way, but he had handled so much of it that it had palled on his appetite. Chickens were more to his liking, so chickens he must have, and the city, of eourse, was called upon to pay for them.

were more to his liking, so chickens he must have, and the city, of-eourse, was called upon to pay for them.

In his interview with Acting-Mayor Nagle Wagner admitted that chickens had been supplied for his table and in the bills had been charged as beef.

When pressed to know why this had been done the big Jailer wriggled uneasily in his chair and said: "That was merely an irregularity. I thought I had a right to est chicken if I wanted to, and if the man who supplied it saw fit to charge it to the beel account I don't see why I should be blamed. That is the butcher's fault, not mine."

The Mayor was not satisfied with this explanation and insisted upon knowing why as much as 44.20 had been paid for four chickens.

"Isn't that a pretty good price?" asked his honor.

"Well, now, I don't know much about the prices of chickens," was the answer, "for I hayen't been in the business lately. You see, I don't pay much attention to those things myself. My clerk looks out for the bills, and I guess he will see that the city isn't robbed.

When Wagner emerged from the Mayor's office after this interview he was very red in the face and he was evidently in an ugly frame of mind. He refused to discuss the matter for publication, intimating that he believed he could attend to his own business without outside interference.

Mayor Nagle said he had referred the matter to the City Counselor, and that he would press the investigation as soon as that official reported his opinion.

James Quinlan of the firm of James Quinlan & Son, the Union Market butchers, who supply the jail with meat, admits that he had been in the habit of supplying chickens and charging them as beef.

"I don't see anything particularly wrong in that." he said. "If the jailer wants teat chicken that is his look-out, not ours. Why, so far as I know the same thing has been going on for years. Every institution in the city, as I understand it, does the same thing. It is just like this: The terms of our contract with the city stipulates that we shall supply the j thing else we probably would not be paid for it.

"We never ask any questions. When the Superintendent of any institution like the jail wants anything we go and get it for him and ask no questions. That is for him to settle with the authorities.

"If he wanted a suit of clothes I suppose it would be our place to get it for him."

"Would that be charged to beef, too?"

"Why, of course; we would have to charge it to that account."

"But isn't that practically taking money from the city under false pretenses?"

"Oh! I don't know. It is not a matter that concerns us at all. We are willing to fill any orders we get, and it is all right so long as we get our pay for what we supply. Wagner is the man who must-an

"So far as I know," said he, "there is nothing in the law enabling us to cancel his contract. The method of false entry which has been going on may be a misdemeanor under the law, but I am not posted on that point. That will be for some one else to decide."

Shades of Offenbach, Melbac and Halevy!
Verily have you been offended against the queen of comic opera. She has descended to depths unheard of and shattered every cannon of art. From the center of the stage, with the calcium full upon her, she actually said "nit"-herrible word!-loud enough to be heard ten rows back. Perhaps she didn't mean that it was to get over the footlights, but it did, and those who heard it thought it was the cutest thing the prima donns said all evening.

"La Perichole" was Miss Russell's opera last evening and her mood during the entire performance was unusually chipper. There was more vivacity about her acting than customary and she was evidently, for some reason, on particularly good terms with herselt.

It was during the last act that she committed the assault on the English language and the librettist's memories. Together with Piquillo she had been chained to the prison wall.

"I like this—nit," said the prima donna. The last word was very low, but it got away from her and everybody wondered what it was that made Miss Russell so gay. The whole performance of the opera was excellent. Richle Ling as Piquille and Joseph Herbert as the Marquis de Satitares were especially worthy.

press agent has already prepared the information on the proposed trip in great detail.

Pauline expects to begin an engagement in London as soon as her engagements in this countr's are closed. She will play there six weeks—the Lord and the London public being willing—and then she will go over to Berlin for four weeks. Vienna will mjoy her for four weeks, Hamburg for hree weeks and the French capital for five weeks. It is announed that she will be under the direction of Sir Augustus Harris and Gustav Amberg. She will appear in "Dorcas" and in two other operatic comedies now being written for her by Johann Strauss and Dr. Carl Zeiler.

Miss Hall is something of a linguist. She is of German descent and is perfectly at home with this tongue. She has made French and Italian a study and is said to have mastered them, and yet, even though she would attempt pieces in the language of the countries in which she might play, her foreign tour appears rather hazardous. Others, greater than she, have crossed the water and failed. But then again others with not her reputation have gone over and succeeded. So after all it's a speculation.

Poor Marie Jansen is being sat upon by the New York critics for her starring amthe New York critics for her starring ambition. She has just put on "The Merry-Countess" in the dramatic hub and she does not find the gentlemen who are supposed to mold public opinion in a kindly mood toward her. They all remember the old Casino days, when Marie warmed all their hearts with her dainty figure and piquant ways, and with evident displeasure they recall her various attempts at success in her starring seasons. They are relegating her to the ranks of the "traveling attractions" and this means so much in New York. Once n that class and it's like breaking out of jail to-get out of it.

The almost universal diagnosis of the case is that the "starring fever" caused her downfall.

MR. BEHRENS' ADVENTURE.

A Lumber Merchant's Nocturnal Encounter With Highwaymen.

Maybe the next time Charles J. Behrens of C. J. & D. F. Behrens, lumber merchants, in the Security building, goes out to charts, in the Security building, goes out to see the elephant, he will provide himself with a shot-gun for purposes of defense. By this it is not intended to aver that Mr. Behrens was seeing the elephant when he was robbed of a valuable gold watch and important papers last Thursday night, because Mr. Behrens could not be found Saturday morning to confirm it. But some of his acquaintances affirm that he was feeling pretty gay when he burst into Kleitkamp's saloon at Eighteenth street and ranking avenue, directing after the robbery, and accused those present of being in the "push," and of conspiring against his peace and welfare.

Mr. Behrens resides at 2221 Rauschenbach avenue. After office hours Thursday, from the statements of the police and others, he took a very circultous route homeward. It took in Tony Fainst's, where he had supper and perhaps a few other things, and, in all probability other resorts perfectly respectable, but not near so high-toned as "Faust's." The route followed by Mr. Behrens was so circultous that it was it o'clock Thursday night before he had progressed as far toward his home as Eighteenth street and Franklin avenue.

That is where he met John Bethege, who, being a night watchman, has a good excuse for being in that neighborhood at that hour of the night. Bethege has known Mr. Behrens for several years and it was with some pain that he narrated the incidents of Mr. Behrens homeward journey from this point for the benefit of a Post-Dispatch reporter. Mr. Bethege lives at 803 North Twenty-second street and consented to being aroused from a sound sleep for the purpose. "If went into Kleitkamp's saloon," said Mr. Bethege, "to ask whether everything was all right, as I always do. I was about to go out when Charley burstin at the door. He leaned up against the bar and tried to wipe the blood off his forehead with his coat sleeve. He had a little cut on his forehead, His coat sleeve was all muddy, and I thought he had fallen down, He was under the influence of liquor pretty badly. The bartender told him to go over and wash himself at the basin, and I asked him what was the matter. Then he turned on me and declared that we were all in the push and that I was trying to do him up.

"I still thought he had fallen down, but pretty soon he got a little quieted and told made him down and robbed him of his 135 rold was the matter, he said they knocked him down and robbed him of his 135 rold was pretty angry when I told the policeman made him to give

THE LAW IANY YEARS.

One Reason Why St. Louis Has Such Interior Gas.

A STATUTE WAS OVERLOOKED

The Laclede Gas Light Company Can Foist Any Old Meter Off on the Consumer.

William Osmer, Secretary of the Council, has discovered that the Laclede Gas Light Co. has been allowed for years to violate the law without an effort being made to

The bad quality of the gas furnished him at his home led him to make an investigation and in going over the revised ordinances he made a discovery which reveals a very peculiar state of affairs. He called the maiter to the attention of Councilman Pat Clarke and that gentleman introduced resolution at the Council meeting Friday night calling for information.

The old ordinance, which is now section soo of the revised ordinances, dates back to its revised ordinances, dates back to its revised ordinances, which is now section soo of the revised ordinances, dates back to its revised ordinances, and then sealed by consumers shall first be tested by the Supervisor of City Lighting and then sealed and stamped. It is also plainly set forth that for every unsealed and unstamped meter used by a gas company a fine of 36 a day shall be paid into the city treasury. It now turns out that there is not a sealed meter in use in this city. Tha Laclede company pays no more attention to the ordinance than if it was not in existicate. Good meters and bad meters are showeled out by the thousands, and the consumer is, left at the mercy of the big corporation. He has no way of telling whether or not his meter registers accurately, and the city officials have failed to make the required inspections.

rately, and the city officials have falled to make the required inspections.

Under this ordinance it is the fluty of the Supervisor of City Lighting to test a meter whenever called upon to do so by a consumer, and if it is found to be incorrect it is his duty to have the fault remedied at once. This is not done at present, nor has any attempt been made to do it since. J. W. Turner was Street Commissioner. At that time Supervisor o'Reilly wrote to the president of the Board of Public Improvements asking for instructions. A consumer had applied to him to have a meter to City Counselor Marshall, who gave it as his opinion that the inspection was not present asking for instructions and increasing in itself," said O'Reilly. "Prior to the date in the elaw. It now transe. "The reason I asked for the opinion its interesting in itself," said O'Reilly. "Prior to the date of my letter in 1893, we had been do so, and as should be done under the law. If one of the date of my letter in 1893, we had been do so, and as should be done under the law. Gen. Turner asked as a favor that the inspection cease until some littigation then spection cease until some littigation then appeting was settled. I was not sure that thous and I wrote for an opinion accordingly, Mr. Marshall, to my utter surprise, it can only account for it on the theory that there was no law requiring the inspection. It can only account for it on the theory that there was no law requiring the inspection in the everlooked the old ordinance, which is the overlooked the old ordinance, which is the own of them to see if that one one has tested probably cost the consumers many know and the probably cost the consumers many thousands of dollars for gas that was never burned."

It has also been discovered by O'Pauliy.

It has also been discovered by O'Reilly that there is no ordinance in effect north of Keokuk street regulating the quality of gas supplied. The law regulating the quality pired by limitation two years ago, and the Laclade can palm off anything it pleases on the public as an excuse for gas. A prebulic as an excuse for gas. A prebut nothing can be done when it is found Councilman Clarke, in speaking of the matter, said: "I have heard hundreds of matter, said: "I have heard hundreds of the complaints about gas meters and I propose the matter. Every consumer should have a few should be enforced, as we have a law if should be enforced,

The sick and ailing who are stretching ou their hands for help must take the best that world now affords,

The reasoning that has enabled Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., Li, D., of Dartmouth college to discover the remarkable formula of Paine's celery compound is the result of the century's work in medicine. It is by a new and more thoughtful grouping of diseases, from a careful study of their causes, that Prof. Phelps has been enabled to see the true relationship of all diseases of

The cure lay in attending to the nutritio of the whole system. This system of cure, simple and clear like most epoch-making ideas, was embodied in the greatest tissue former, nerve-restorer and regulator yet known to science-Paine's celery compound the one great remedy that makes people

BAKE A BATCH OF BISCUITS

The secret of success in this recipe, as in others, is to use but two-thirds as much Cottolene as you used to use of lard. Cottolene will make the biscuit light, delicious, wholesome. Better than any biscuit you ever made before. Try it. Be sure and get genuine Cottolene. Sold everywhere in tins with trade-marks positive and lasting cure in Paine's celery compound.

It takes a very short time to settle any doubts on the matter by giving Paine's celery compound a trial.

Mr. John Holland, whose portrait is given above, is a parlor car conductor, whose home is in Jersey City. He writes:

"T wish to give my testimony of the great benefit Paine's celery compound has done me. A year ago I had typhold fever, and later I had to have an operation in my side for an abscess over the liver. This left me tery weak. I grew very nervous and could not sleep. I was tired even more after I got up than I was when I went to bed. I have taken four bottles of Paine's celery compound, and am perfectly well! I have sent six bottles to some friends in Virginia.

One, although he has taken only a bottle of it, feels much better and sleeps well."

Paine's celery compound puts the system on a healthy, strong basis, safe from disease. Try it if you are alling, and a trial will speedily convince you.
